Cinco de Mayo
May 3, 2002
Draft #8

Welcome to the White House. This is the people's house – a house for all of the American people – and I am honored that you have come here to celebrate Cinco de Mayo. The victory we commemorate today is a source of tremendous pride to the people of Mexico – and a source of inspiration to the people of America.

Acknowledgments

- Sara Martinez Tucker, President, National Hispanic Scholarship Fund and Sallie Mae Board member (will introduce the President)
- Mexican Ambassador Juan Jose Bremer
- Secretary Mel Martinez, Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Administrator Hector Barreto, Small Business Administration
- Director Gaddi Vazquez, Peace Corps
- Director Al Rascon, Selective Service
- Marisol Nichols, Actress, "Resurrection Boulevard"
- Erubiel Durazo, first basemen for the Arizona Diamondbacks
- Jeff Garcia, quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers
- Frank Garcia, guard for the St. Louis Rams
- Ron Rivera, former Chicago Bears Linebacker and current Philadelphia Eagles coach
- Juan Castillo, Philadelphia Eagles coach

Cinco de Mayo celebrates the great victory at the Battle of Puebla, where the Mexican Army, against overwhelming odds, won a great battle for freedom. That victory continues to inspire liberty-loving people across the globe. It reminds us that the cost of freedom is always high – but it is never too high. Brave and determined people, committed to a great cause, can do great good. That was true one hundred and forty years ago – and it remains true today.

Just before September 11th, I welcomed my good friend President Fox to the White House as the guest of honor at my first state dinner. When he arrived I said: "the United States has no more important relationship in the world than the one we have with Mexico.” In the past seven months, our relationship has grown even stronger. The people of Mexico stand with the American people in the war on terror. This is a decisive decade in the history of liberty – and the United States is grateful we can count on the strong support of Mexico.

America’s strong relationship with Mexico is built on common values and shared culture. We both value families and communities – the places where character is formed and traditions are passed from one generation to the next. Americans appreciate the strong faith of the Mexican people – a faith that provides hope, inspiration, and unity in even the darkest times. People on both sides of the Rio Grande value independence and freedom and opportunity – the ability to work hard to achieve your dreams, and become successful as a result. By their strong values and their determination to create a better life for themselves and their children, immigrants from Mexico enrich American life.

My relationship with President Fox is similar to the relationship between our nations. It is built on the solid ground of respect, trust, and friendship. President Fox is a great Mexican patriot – a man of honest talk and convictions, and passionately concerned for his people’s welfare. We are both deeply committed to helping the entire American familia achieve prosperity and live in peace.

Mexico and America share a continent – and we are dedicated to common goals. We are working together to create a “smart border” – one that will speed the safe flow of people and commerce, but protect us from terrorism and crime. We are working together on a “Partnership for Prosperity” – to better focus the creativity and resources of the private sector on the critical task of development. We are working together to improve conditions for people living along the border. And we are working together to create an entire hemisphere that lives in liberty and trades in freedom.

Our two nations will succeed together because our futures are bound to each other. Geography made us neighbors, but our shared values and rich cultures have made us the closest of friends. The great Mexican leader Benito Juarez said: “Among men, as among nations, respect for the rights of others is peace.” The United States and Mexico have a relationship of respect. It is the foundation of our enduring peace and friendship.

Thank you for coming to the White House to celebrate Mexico's strong and vibrant culture ... its extraordinary history ... and our common future.

May God bless you, may God bless the people of Mexico, and may God bless the United States of America.

Cinco de Mayo
May 3, 2002
Draft #8

BRITISH OR PAPER

Welcome to the White House. This is the people's house – a house for all of the American people – and I am honored that you have come here to celebrate Cinco de Mayo. The victory we commemorate today is a source of tremendous pride to the people of Mexico – and a source of inspiration to the people of America.

Acknowledgments

- Sara Martinez Tucker, President, National Hispanic Scholarship Fund and Sallie Mae Board member (will introduce the President)
- Mexican Ambassador Juan Jose Bremer
- Secretary Mel Martinez, Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Administrator Hector Barreto, Small Business Administration
- Director Gaddi Vazquez, Peace Corps
- Director Al Rascon, Selective Service
- Marisol Nichols, Actress, "Resurrection Boulevard"
- Erubiel Durazo, first basemen for the Arizona Diamondbacks
- Jeff Garcia, quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers
- Frank Garcia, guard for the St. Louis Rams
- Ron Rivera, former Chicago Bears Linebacker and current Philadelphia Eagles coach
- Juan Castillo, Philadelphia Eagles coach

Cinco de Mayo celebrates the great victory at the Battle of Puebla, where the Mexican Army, against overwhelming odds, won a great battle for freedom. That victory continues to inspire liberty-loving people across the globe. It reminds us that the cost of freedom is always high – but it is never too high. Brave and determined people, committed to a great cause, can do great good. That was true one hundred and forty years ago – and it remains true today.

Just before September 11th, I welcomed my good friend President Fox to the White House as the guest of honor at my first state dinner. When he arrived I said: "the United States has no more important relationship in the world than the one we have with Mexico.” In the past seven months, our relationship has grown even stronger. The people of Mexico stand with the American people in the war on terror. This is a decisive decade in the history of liberty – and the United States is grateful we can count on the strong support of Mexico.

America’s strong relationship with Mexico is built on common values and shared culture. We both value families and communities – the places where character is formed and traditions are passed from one generation to the next. Americans appreciate the strong faith of the Mexican people – a faith that provides hope, inspiration, and unity in even the darkest times. People on both sides of the Rio Grande value independence and freedom and opportunity – the ability to work hard to achieve your dreams, and become successful as a result. By their strong values and their determination to create a better life for themselves and their children, immigrants from Mexico enrich American life.

My relationship with President Fox is similar to the relationship between our nations. It is built on the solid ground of respect, trust, and friendship. President Fox is a great Mexican patriot – a man of honest talk and convictions, and passionately concerned for his people’s welfare. We are both deeply committed to helping the entire American familia achieve prosperity and live in peace.

Mexico and America share a continent – and we are dedicated to common goals. We are working together to create a “smart border” – one that will speed the safe flow of people and commerce, but protect us from terrorism and crime. We are working together on a “Partnership for Prosperity” – to better focus the creativity and resources of the private sector on the critical task of development. We are working together to improve conditions for people living along the border. And we are working together to create an entire hemisphere that lives in liberty and trades in freedom.

Our two nations will succeed together because our futures are bound to each other. Geography made us neighbors, but our shared values and rich cultures have made us the closest of friends. The great Mexican leader Benito Juarez said: “Among men, as among nations, respect for the rights of others is peace.” The United States and Mexico have a relationship of respect. It is the foundation of our enduring peace and friendship.

Thank you for coming to the White House to celebrate Mexico's strong and vibrant culture ... its extraordinary history ... and our common future.

May God bless you, may God bless the people of Mexico, and may God bless the United States of America.

Cinco de Mayo
May 3, 2002
Draft #8

02 APR 30 11:21 AM

Welcome to the White House. This is the people's house – a house for all of the American people – and I am honored that you have come here to celebrate Cinco de Mayo. The victory we commemorate today is a source of tremendous pride to the people of Mexico – and a source of inspiration to the people of America.

Acknowledgments

- Sara Martinez Tucker, President, National Hispanic Scholarship Fund and Sallie Mae Board member (will introduce the President)
- Mexican Ambassador Juan Jose Bremer
- Secretary Mel Martinez, Department of Housing and Urban Development
- Administrator Hector Barreto, Small Business Administration
- Director Gaddi Vazquez, Peace Corps
- Director Al Rascon, Selective Service
- Marisol Nichols, Actress, "Resurrection Boulevard"
- Erubiel Durazo, first basemen for the Arizona Diamondbacks
- Jeff Garcia, quarterback for the San Francisco 49ers
- Frank Garcia, guard for the St. Louis Rams
- Ron Rivera, former Chicago Bears Linebacker and current Philadelphia Eagles coach
- Juan Castillo, Philadelphia Eagles coach

Cinco de Mayo celebrates the great victory at the Battle of Puebla, where the Mexican Army, against overwhelming odds, won a great battle for freedom. That victory continues to inspire liberty-loving people across the globe. It reminds us that the cost of freedom is always high – but it is never too high. Brave and determined people, committed to a great cause, can do great good. That was true one hundred and forty years ago – and it remains true today.

Just before September 11th, I welcomed my good friend President Fox to the White House as the guest of honor at my first state dinner. When he arrived I said: "the United States has no more important relationship in the world than the one we have with Mexico.” In the past seven months, our relationship has grown even stronger. The people of Mexico stand with the American people in the war on terror. This is a decisive decade in the history of liberty – and the United States is grateful we can count on the strong support of Mexico.

America’s strong relationship with Mexico is built on common values and shared culture. We both value families and communities – the places where character is formed and traditions are passed from one generation to the next. Americans appreciate the strong faith of the Mexican people – a faith that provides hope, inspiration, and unity in even the darkest times. People on both sides of the Rio Grande value independence and freedom and opportunity – the ability to work hard to achieve your dreams, and become successful as a result. By their strong values and their determination to create a better life for themselves and their children, immigrants from Mexico enrich American life.

My relationship with President Fox is similar to the relationship between our nations. It is built on the solid ground of respect, trust, and friendship. President Fox is a great Mexican patriot – a man of honest talk and convictions, and passionately concerned for his people’s welfare. We are both deeply committed to helping the entire American familia achieve prosperity and live in peace.

Mexico and America share a continent – and we are dedicated to common goals. We are working together to create a “smart border” – one that will speed the safe flow of people and commerce, but protect us from terrorism and crime. We are working together on a “Partnership for Prosperity” – to better focus the creativity and resources of the private sector on the critical task of development. We are working together to improve conditions for people living along the border. And we are working together to create an entire hemisphere that lives in liberty and trades in freedom.

Our two nations will succeed together because our futures are bound to each other. Geography made us neighbors, but our shared values and rich cultures have made us the closest of friends. The great Mexican leader Benito Juarez said: “Among men, as among nations, respect for the rights of others is peace.” The United States and Mexico have a relationship of respect. It is the foundation of our enduring peace and friendship.

Thank you for coming to the White House to celebrate Mexico's strong and vibrant culture ... its extraordinary history ... and our common future.

May God bless you, may God bless the people of Mexico, and may God bless the United States of America.
