D

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

IMMIGRATION SPEECH AT SAVAGE HALL

Thursday, September 6, 2001

3:05 p.m. – 4:05 p.m.

Savage Hall

1 Bancroft Street

Toledo, Ohio

Karl Rove

I. PURPOSE

To travel to an emerging Hispanic community with Mexican President Vicente Fox during his State visit.

II. BACKGROUND

A. Ohio's Hispanic Population

Ohio has experienced a dramatic increase in its Hispanic population, with Hispanics accounting for over 15 percent of Ohio's total net population growth in the last decade. 1.9 percent of Ohio's 11,353,140 residents are Hispanic, and 42 percent (90,663) of them are of Mexican descent.

Toledo, which is located in Northwest Ohio, has one of the State's highest demographic concentrations of Hispanics, concentrated primarily in its South Toledo neighborhoods. Six percent of the city's overall population are Hispanic. A significant, though not fully documented, number are employed as migrant laborers in local factories and nearby agricultural concerns. This may partially account for Toledo's high dropout rate among Hispanic high school students. Only 50 percent of Toledo's school-age Hispanics graduate, as compared with 71.6 percent statewide.

B. University of Toledo: Savage Hall

Founded in 1872, the University of Toledo is a comprehensive state university that serves over 20,000 students from across the Country and around the world. The University also boasts one of the oldest Academic Honors Programs in the country. This program has represented the University at the National Conference on Undergraduate Research every year since 1992.

University of Toledo's athletic program is part of the Mid-America Conference. Its mascot is the "Rockets," and its colors are midnight blue and gold. Last year, the University's football team finished the season ranked 25th in the Nation, and on Saturday, August 25, the football team won its first game of the 2001 season against the University of Minnesota, 38-7. The football team also has a potential Heisman Trophy candidate in its running back, Chester Taylor. Chester will be seated in the front row for today's event.

Savage Hall, home of the University of Toledo basketball team, is the venue for your speech. This facility accommodates a crowd of approximately 7,000 (see attendees listed below).

Dear President Bush and President Fox:

During this Labor Day week, and on behalf of our entire community, I extend an official welcome to you both on your historic journey here among us. We look forward to your visit and to your remarks. We also hope you will listen and learn as our citizenry "speak truth to power." Building on this trip, we look forward to establishing a working relationship with your respective Administrations to address continental issues of mutual concern. Please let me propose the establishment of an "Intercontinental Organization on Working Life and Cooperation in the Americas."

First and foremost, we seek your leadership and engagement on the economic and social consequences of NAFTA in both nations. The serious dislocation of millions of industrial and agricultural workers, as well as small and medium sized firms, demands serious and compassionate action by those sworn to serve their fellow citizens. In our region (Ohio, Michigan and Indiana) post-NAFTA, over 115,621 good paying jobs have been lost to the maquiladora zone, where workers toil for hunger wages and have no job security. Ohio is among the top 5 states in our union losing jobs due to NAFTA (37,694). Nationally, since NAFTA, over 776,030 middle class jobs have been relocated to the maquila zone. Phillips Electronics in Ottawa, Ohio, the latest plant to announce a shut down production, will terminate hundreds middle class workers. Spangler's Candy, in Bryan, Ohio, has announced it will shift some of its candy cane production to Mexico. Last week in Chicago, Brach's Candy, employing 1,500 with a major segment of Latino-American workers, announced it is shutting down its century old factory there, and moving production either to Mexico or Argentina. The displacement of high paying, middle class manufacturing jobs across the U.S. is fueled by NAFTA, and will only worsen if the proposed Free Trade Area of the Americas agreement ignores the plight of workers. With NAFTA and FTAA, only investment is given free reign in our hemisphere. Our goal is "Fair Trade, Free People."

Meanwhile, 3,200 multinational firms located in the maquiladora zone have shaped the modern scourge of the dreaded sweatshop. Nearly one million Mexicans, largely women, work in high productivity poverty, with no freely elected labor representation, no job security. The U.S.-Mexico border plagued by alarming rates of tuberculosis, sewage effluent flowing into drinking water, moot environmental laws, and crumbling infrastructure that cannot bear the load being placed on it. Grinding poverty drives the immigration that is a primary subject of your visit.

The root causes of the immigration crisis lie in the deep and continuing disparity between compensation and living standards of workers on either side of our border. Our continent needs a common minimum wage and common labor standards. Trade agreements MUST recognize and include labor rights in the central body of its accords. No nation of conscience should ignore the plight of the dispossessed, the worker without representation, the small holders and campesinos and indigenous people who have no voice. As the powerful force of capital moves across borders so must labor have equal status in any economic accord. Further, NAFTA remains seriously deficient in providing structural adjustment assistance to cushion intercontinental economic integration.

Trade relationships should yield mutually beneficial economic and social benefits, not a legacy of growing political instability. Our U.S. trade relationship with Mexico is becoming increasingly distorted. Before NAFTA, the US held a $3 billion surplus with Mexico. Post NAFTA, the U.S. surplus has turned into a growing cumulative deficit of over $140 billion, with last year's record high of $30 billion. In Mexico, we have witnessed the devaluation of the peso, wage cutbacks, and now job terminations in the maquilas due to a US economic slowdown. Indeed, northern Mexico has become the low wage, export platform to the U.S. opponents of NAFTA predicted. Nearly 90% of maquila production is exported back to the U.S., (and nearly the same from our Canadian counterparts), as Mexico becomes a vast importer of goods from Asia. Long term, this is an economic relationship that is damaging to our continent. The current economic arrangement means the workers of Mexico cannot afford to buy what they make, and their U.S. counterparts lose their living wage jobs as the downward pressure on remaining jobs continues unabated. High productivity poverty with hunger wages in Mexico and displaced U.S. workers do not good neighbors make. As the slogan reads, justice must come to the maquiladoras.

In the countryside, the story is even worse. Over 30 million Mexican farmers are being cruelly uprooted from their historic lands. This is a continental sacrilege of enormous proportions. Some, understandably, escape across our border. Some die in the Arizona desert. Others seek shelter in Mexico City's sprawling metropolis as overextended local services strain under the crush of rapid population growth. Last year, over 360 Mexicans seeking refuge or work died at our border. What kind of cruel economic system is it that tramples on their humanity and pits them against farmers and workers in our countryside who have labored for a century to gain sustenance and a decent way of life, collective bargaining rights, and dignity in the work place. An Intercontinental Agricultural Working Committee must be included as a key component of the Intercontinental Organization I propose.

President Bush, I understand that during your visit to our community you seek to discuss "common problems on our border, problems with drug interdiction, problems with environmental issues, problems with water and immigration." I can assure you that every single one of these problems arises from a flawed NAFTA agreement that leaves working people and the social compact out of the investment equation. It took our nation nearly a century, and a Civil War, to reject a form of indentured servitude in which workers were chattel. Our society still bears the scars of that war. In Mexico, I have witnessed the fear of workers bound to an economic system in which they hold no independent voice, where independent collective bargaining for the value of their work is impossible, and where their hard work, and high productivity yields only more poverty. Here at home, I have witnessed our middle class workers who have struggled to build a way of life have the rug pulled out from under them by forces beyond their control. This surely cannot be your blueprint for our continent in this new millennium.

Something is seriously wrong when workers do not earn enough to buy what they make. It troubles me greatly that in Toluca, Mexico workers who assemble the popular PT Cruisers for DaimlerChrysler do not earn a living wage; every single one of the cars they build are shipped to the U.S. Reciprocally, it bothers me greatly that Toledo's DaimlerChrysler workers who attempted to bid on some portion of backlogged PT Cruiser production were summarily turned down. Since all the production from the Toluca plant is sent through the backdoor into the U.S., why shouldn't the workers in both plants be covered by the same collective bargaining agreement, along with their supplier firms? Otherwise, all that production yields from a continental standpoint is a race to the bottom for the workers.

Equally, in the countryside, it troubles me that northwest Ohio's fresh tomato and pickle businesses are increasingly threatened by Sinaloa plants and packing sheds. Yet field workers in both nations have no hope of a better life as their production is pitted against one another and they compete for survival wage jobs. Again, our continent needs an open forum in which to address and grapple with these serious questions.

Finally, I extend to President Bush and President Fox an invitation to travel with bipartisan delegations from both countries. Let us tour U.S. and Mexican production sites, industrial and agricultural. Let us freely hear from the workers. Let us for the sake of the common good explore openly the dimensions of NAFTA that must be repaired. Let us do what is just. We should strive for an intercontinental accord that elevates our people, not exploits them, that uses the power of economic development and the marketplace to spur the necessary social and physical infrastructure to build great nations and treat our people with respect.

Pope John Paul II captured the essence of the challenge before us when he wrote:
"The market imposes its way of thinking and acting and stamps its scale of values upon behavior."
"What is happening is that changes in technology and work relationships are moving too quickly for cultures to respond. Social, legal and cultural safeguards are vital."

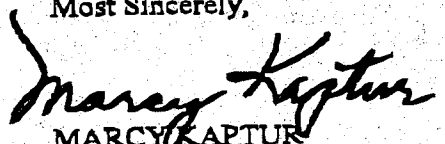

"Globalization often risks destroying these carefully built up structures, by exacting the adoption of new styles of working, living and organizing communities."
"Globalization must not be a new version of colonization."

The Pope stressed that on its course towards globalization, humanity cannot do without an ethical code which must be "wholly independent from financial, ideological or political partisan views."

"Humanity can no longer do without a common code of ethics."

To this end, I would dedicate my full energies as would the people of our community.

Most Sincerely,

MARCY KAPTUR

II. BACKGROUND

The Aurora Gonzales Community and Family Resource Center (“the Center”) provides services to the local Hispanic community of South Toledo, the most geographically dense concentration of Hispanics and Latinos in Ohio. The Center provides local Hispanic seniors, youth, and their families a place for educational, recreational, and social support.

The Center’s programs include: At-Risk Youth Education, Saturday School for Elementary and Secondary students, the Lighthouse Program (an educational program for youths), Senior Nutrition, Senior Bingo, Summer Camp, Youth Athletics, and Tutoring. Along with local businesses and community leaders, the Center coordinates outreach programs, including Early Start, Community Outreach, Kinship Care, Community Health Nurse, Clothing Locker, and Food for Families.

The Center’s most effective service is its after-school program. Students of all ages are invited to the facility to participate in four activities:

- 1) A mentoring program with computers and technological aides for high school students;
- 2) An arts-and-crafts room for pre-school students;
- 3) A game room of ping-pong, foosball, pool tables for elementary school students; and
- 4) A basketball court for primarily junior high school students.

You will visit all four of these rooms during your tour of the facility.

The Center is funded by the Ohio State Budget Community Fund and by the United Way. George P. Bush visited and held an event in your honor at the Center during the 2000 campaign for President.
