Re: Bookmarks for Easter Egg Roll

Hold
Debbie's checking expense issue

Tucker Eskew made a great suggestion last week. The idea is to market the upcoming children's section of the White House web site during the Easter Egg Roll. The soon-to-be-launched site—whitehousekids.gov—is designed to present the President's message of reading and making right choices to children through the personification of the President's pets.

After consultation with your office last Friday, I propose including a bookmark in the Easter Egg Roll packet each child will receive. A bookmark appears to be the most appropriate way to distribute information about the children's web site while maintaining the focus of the event—the rolling of the eggs. Deborah K. Hair has approved the project.

The Office of Presidential Student Correspondence will print 35,000 bookmarks on pastel papers and deliver them to your office by Monday, April 9. The bookmarks will come in 3-4 styles, front and back. Attached are draft designs of the bookmarks.

Please let me know if you have any questions (456-5133). Thank you for including the bookmarks in the packets. The Easter Egg Roll is sure to be a great success!

Dear Mr.+Mrs. Bush
Thank you for the Easter party. You have a beautiful house.
We were sorry that it rained. Please say hi to the Easter Bunny - we missed him.

Pawline

Pauline, our 5 year old, drew this picture of a sunny day and dictated her Thank You note to my wife!

Many Thanks for your hospitality today and God bless you in all your great work for our Country.
Respectfully,
Tom

Dear President and Mrs. Bush,

Kraft was proud to be a sponsor of today's Easter Egg Roll - I'm just sorry it was so wet.
My wife and our two oldest girls enjoyed your reception on the State Floor and getting a glimpse of you.
